

Have your say

Help set the research agenda for occupational therapy

Royal College of Occupational Therapists

RCOT is working with the James Lind Alliance (JLA) in a Priority Setting Partnership (PSP) which will determine the top ten research priorities for occupational therapy in the UK.

People who have experience of accessing occupational therapy services, their carers and occupational therapists have a unique opportunity to influence future research in occupational therapy.

Get involved

1. Tell us your questions

Complete a survey to tell us the questions you want answered about occupational therapy. The survey will open in summer 2019. Please visit rcot.co.uk/otpsp to take part.

2. Help us spread the word

The project needs input from a wide range of individuals who reflect the diversity of people who access occupational therapy services, carers and occupational therapists working in the profession. Help us by sharing information on the project with your networks.

3. Become a project partner

One of the best ways for us to achieve wide ranging engagement is through partners. We are actively looking for organisations that can help us disseminate information about the project and encourage people to participate.
