

What you think matters

Help influence future research into occupational therapy

We want to give people who access occupational therapy services, their carers and occupational therapists a louder voice in determining the direction of future occupational therapy research than is traditionally the case.

This will make sure future research in the UK focuses on answering the questions that matter most to people accessing and delivering occupational therapy services.

In our first survey, we asked respondents to submit their questions about occupational therapy that they felt research could answer.

Now we're asking you to help us prioritise those questions in our second survey.

By completing the survey, you are helping to create a shortlist of questions from which the top 10 priorities will be agreed at a workshop in June.

How you can take part

You can take part as an individual or in a discussion group, and support someone else to take part too.

- Complete the online survey at: rcot.co.uk/researchpriorities
- Or download the survey in English or Welsh and return it by email or post: rcot.co.uk/otpsp
- Encourage others, including people who access occupational therapy services and their carers, to complete the survey.
- You'll find guidance materials at: rcot.co.uk/otpsp
- Express interest in participating in the workshop at: rcot.co.uk/otpsp

Who we are working with

RCOT is working with the James Lind Alliance in a Priority Setting Partnership (PSP) to identify the top 10 priorities for future occupational therapy research in the UK.

You have until 5pm on Tuesday 14 April 2020 to complete and share the survey.
rcot.co.uk/otpsp

In partnership with

James
Lind Alliance

Priority Setting Partnerships

Royal College of Occupational Therapists

